

My Favorite Beach Vacations

This story shows how my family strive to help each other. My disability challenges us to create lots of ways to adapt fun activities. I learn to overcome fears because I want to be part of my family and experience everything that my sister and brother do, within my capabilities. Vacations help us to bond and to realize how important we are to each other. Each of us mature in our own way during these vacations. My sister and brother learn responsibility, while I learn to assert myself. It's comforting to test the waters when your parents are there to protect and guide you.
