

Tragedy and Redemption

God is Love. This remains a certainty. It resounds, especially while reading these stories. This collection of stories is a profound look into real life people that have touched, changed, moved and inspired hundreds of others with their autobiographies. This is the first time that their stories are being published and for personal reasons, all the names and dates have been changed and some grammatical changes made. But otherwise, it is exactly as the original authors wrote and intended it. The varied writing styles and sensitive experiences show the diversity of God's people. These men could easily be your brother, uncle, father, or husband, and likely are. Their personal experiences have shaped them. They react and think the way they do, mostly because of what they have been through. Insight into their lives might offer explanations as to why certain people (people that you know of, even yourself) act the way they do. Their common destination however, suggests that there is hope for all of us.
