

Guiltless Catholic Parenting from A to y

Is it really possible to raise your children in your faith without feeling guilty, or putting guilt on them? While none of us have all of the answers, of course, Ghezzi and the other contributors have a lot of experience raising kids in a faith-based home. So, they are here to share their experiences and ideas with you, all based upon sound biblical principles. From parenting the youngest ones through the teen years, in subjects like prayer, the sacraments, discipline, the heart, and being in the world but not of it, here are ten units in all that will provide you with the wisdom of those who have been where you are (or where you are going!). There are family activities with action ideas to do at the end of each unit.
